Local Happenings

Juveniles Apprehended

Calgary's famous 40 mile horse race was made to look silly in Raymond recently when George Heggie reported to the Town Police that he found his horse, complete with saddle, bridle etc. in a very tired condition in his yard. It looked as if it had been on a very hard trip. Intensive investigation by police finally disclosed that a juvenile had taken this horse at about 11:30 at night and ridden to the "Kirkaldy Ranch" a distance of about fifty miles return and stole a pair of chaps. The horse was home at about 7:15 next morning. It was feared the horse would die but apparently it is recovering. This offence was committed in cold and snowing weather.

Several complaints of theft of gasoline lead to two juveniles being caught by Town Police and taken into court. Their sense of smell how ever must have been bad. When apprehended by police they were stalled in their truck. The reason being they had taken stove oil instead of gasoline.

Sometime ago the Raymond High School was entered and things damaged and distributed. The culprits topped this off by drinking beer and leaving the bottles as souvenirs. However this week, the joke is on them. Town police have apprehended the accused and they are to appear in court soon to answer this charge.

ALKALI IS REALY NOT ALKALI

What is "alkali," as the term is applied to the grey areas we are so familiar with in this district? Chemically, this grey deposit is not an alkali at all. An alkali is an hydroxide while these deposits are made up of salts, namely the chlorides, sulphates and carbonates of the soft metals: sodium, potassium, magnesium and calcium.

These salts are of very little importance as plant food—of no value in concentration. In fact, as we know they kill the plant by plasmolysis. If a healthy plant is given a dose of these salts at its roots, it will die by spewing its sap into the soil.

We have little hope that any useful plant will ever be found that will tolerate these areas. Those plants that will grow in a limited amount of salt are of no value in agriculture.

These so called alkali concentrations are produced in the following manner: When free water, under poor drainage conditions, goes down into our substrata of gumbo and shale, it picks up by solution, the salts abundant in this type of substratum.

On coming to the surface, by evaporation and capillary action, the salts are left in ever increasing amounts.

This concentration is apparent to the eye in the greysish areas. But is, also, going along insidiously and imperceptibly over a very large area in our fields and is a very real threat to our economy in this district.

The maximum concentration occurs at a point above the water table at what might be termed the "capillary level". It is necessary therefore to drain concrete works and basements at least 30 inches below the excavations.

We have therefore in this district ever increasing cattail bogs skirted by alkali areas at the capillary level. Deposits of dead cattails raise the level of these areas each year! And in the fields of beets and hay analyzing increase of the salts!

The digre of frog-bottom to the joy of the frogs may well be our ensemble. The frogs are practising now!

Domtium playdowns. We hope Wes Rice will be able to shine as brightly in future games as he has in the series just passed, as it is your scribbles humbly opinion that the little blonde fellow is the Lions Roar. We look forward to another interesting basketball season next year when the Jacks will be out for vengeance and the Lions will be striving to hold their title.

Note: Golden Snow doesn't appear very downhearted.

MANY TRAVELLERS SAID CARELESS OF THEIR HEALTH

Summer vacation period is on the go and there soon will be many vacationists travelling throughout Canada. Therefore, it is not too late to warn holidaymakers and other travellers concerning the dangers of raw milk.

Although they know, or should know, that unpasteurized milk is a germ carrier and a fine culture medium for virulent disease bacteria, many travellers are not making sure that their milk supply is safe. They are not taking the trouble to check whether the milk they obtain from farms, lunch rooms, restaurants or hotels is safe—safe because it has been pasteurized.

Most of these persons are residents of towns and cities where pasteurized milk is dropped out their door steps every day. For 40 or 50 weeks each year they are protected, knowingly or unknowingly, against milk-borne diseases. Then for two or three weeks they throw all precaution to the winds—and order milk, not knowing and evidently not caring whether it is pasteurized.

These persons must know that just one drop of raw milk which is contaminated with a disease germ—typhoid, undulant fever, bovine tuberculosis, septic sore throat, paratyphoid, make them sick, perhaps cripple them, perhaps take their lives.

It is difficult to understand how people can be so careless about something so important to their health. They won't eat or drink visible dirt, yet they take chances with dirt germs—they can't see.

Travellers should always make sure of the safety of their daily milk supply. Accidental demand by vacationists and other travellers will soon make purveyors of raw milk realize that the public demands and will buy nothing else but safe pasteurized milk.

CAPITAL IS CALM BUT—

As the free countries gather their forces for a possible early showdown with Communism in this world crisis it must be reported that this nation's capital is remarkably calm in face of the spreading war fever on the international scene but there are definite reactions here, even if the war scare and exciting rumors reported from other capitals are absent in this nation's capital.

So far there are no such real war jitters here as reported in the other capitals where preparedness programs, universal military training, temporary selective service etc., are suggested to be in the making to bolster forces. Nevertheless it is evident backstage in this capital, that a preparedness program here is a direct repercussion of the current world crisis and that "Canada will play her full part in every movement to give substance to the conception of a collective system of collective security by the development of regional pacts under the charter of the United Nations", as a spokesman for the Canadian Government stated here. This infer that Canada supports in principle a collective security pact among the free nations such as the move by Britain, France, Belgium, The Netherlands, etc., in forming a western European Union to mutually guarantee security against aggression by any nation or group of nations.

RAIN MAKING

Though originally "rain making" stories were not taken seriously, yet this is no longer the case, judging from a report along Parliament Hill where it is now indicated in official circles that the National Research Council of Canada has been conducting laboratory tests in the use of dry ice for rain making and it is planned to conduct aerial tests during the next summer season with these being made on a large scale. NO ACTION CONTEMPLATED

"No action has been taken by the Government towards submitting to the Supreme Court of Canada the Act respecting Communist propaganda enacted by the Legislature of Quebec", said Justice Minister Hsieh when he was questioned in the House of Commons whether or not the Government had taken such action against the "Padlock Law" of Quebec, adding that no action of this kind is contemplated now.

TESTS OF STRENGTH

Behind the scenes political activities and gossip in Ottawa emphasize that all the major parties are getting ready to test their strength in the coming three by-elections to be held in Yale and Vancouver Centre in British Columbia as well as in the Ontario riding in Ontario. It is known that several provincial elections may occur in 1948 and this fact is considered to increase the interest in these federal tests which are apparently deemed to be extremely important by all parties.

ATOMIC ENERGY

It is pointed out here that any and all uranium mined in this country must be sold to the Canadian Government. Though the prohibition is lifted against prospecting for uranium with this latter action being taken only because it is felt in official quarters here that such prospecting would increase the known reserves of uranium. There are a great many million miles of suitable territory to be explored, and though the government, for the past three years has had a number of parties out seeking this substance and certain discoveries made, yet more can be done in this respect.

"We hope that over the years and in not too many years, we shall find other important deposits of uranium in Canada", stressed Rt. Hon. C. D. Howe in the House of Commons: "It is with that objective that the present regulations are framed."

RENT CONTROLS

Ever since the Canadian Government lifted controls over commercial rentals a flood of stories have circulated along Parliament Hill about landlords asking exorbitant increase actually forcing some business men to give up their stores or offices, so that it was noted here that when delegates from the Canadian Federation of Property Owners interviewed Finance Minister Abbott to ask the removal of such controls over domestic premises the Minister more or promised "consideration and study" of the briefs. He did not indicate what the Government proposed to do about it.

SIGN OF THE DANGER

It is evident here that the Canadian Government intends to spend much more on the nation's armed services and defence research this year than in the preceding year though this is a "peace" year just like last year. However, the dangerous and delicate situation on the international scene can be best adjudged by this fact that the government has found it most advisable to spend more for such services.

No less than $95,211,375, $49,700,365, and $80,000,000 will be used for the army, navy and air forces this year compared with $101,883,150 $49,226,501 and $72,539,507 respectively last year. This means a total of $252,400,000 compared with $213,000,000 last year, though it must be understood that last year less than $200,000,000 was actually spent and this year it is believed this will be $232,000,000.

In addition, the changes of the times can be seen in the decreased spending for the army by almost 6,500,000 whereas only $173,000 will be used for the navy more this year. Significantly the air force will get $7,160,000 more and this is apparently an admission of the emphasis on air power. Likewise almost $3,000,000 more will be spent for defence research than last year, and even then of course, the whole story of such effort can naturally not be disclosed by the Government with the the National Research Council getting $7,428,000 and the Atomic Energy Control Board $8,015,772.

SAID IN THE CAPITAL

"We are doing everything we can to keep Communists from the Civil Service", said Justice Minister Hsieh in the House of Commons.

"It is obvious we won't have time for training prior to world war 3 and therefore, I suggest we do our utmost to persuade the general public to see to our training at once Lt. Col. R. E. Wilkins, military expert, declared in an address here.

"We didn't raise the price—we followed the market", emphasized an official of a packing firm in testifying about butter prices at the Prices Probe of the House of Commons.

"Such a proposal does not appeal to me and I cannot support it" said Trade Minister Howe, rejecting a suggestion by the Canadian Federation of Mayors, that the Canadian Government advance money to provinces and municipalities for housing construction.

"As well as assaulting their bodies, those who preach the vile doctrine of Communism are making assault on the souls of man", remarked D. C. Olan, Director Canadian Travel Bureau.

"Canada is such an enormous and far flung country that the problems of one part are bound sometimes to be in conflict with those of another part", commented Maj. Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C. M.P.

WEEKLY WIND-UP

In face of Soviet Russia's desire for utmost expansion in the world, External Affairs Minister St. Laurent told a labor delegation here that he doubted whether or not Russia is prepared to pay the price of war in achieving its goal.

War amputees and paraplegics came into the House of Commons Committee room to back requests for an increase in veterans disability pensions.

Assurance was given here by Kenneth Taylor, Chairman of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, that quota imports from the United States would be given "reasonable and equitable distribution" through out Canada, making this statement to the Senate Banking Committee after complaints had been made that some of the restricted imports may be "gobbled up" near ports of entry.

Finance Minister Abbott did not deny that there was a possibility that under the contracts for extending credits to war devastated countries of Europe there may be some losses, though he stressed that these contracts would be "fulfilled."

U.S. newly-established Research and Development Board representative, Dr. V. Bush, who is chairman of this all-important branch of the U. S. Defence department, paid a visit here to confer with top Canadian scientists including Dr. O.M. Schlitt, who is chairman of the Defence Research Board of Canada.

2-4-D SPRAY MACHINES

If it is planned to purchase a 2-4-D spray machine this season there are a few things that should be considered before buying.

From experiences of the past two seasons, the low volume-low pressure type of sprayer, which applies the 2-4-D solution at a rate of 1 to 5 gallons per acre, has proven to be very successful. The use of this small quantity of water greatly reduces the cost and inconvenience of weed spraying, and also will help to increase the acreage that can be covered with a day's work.

If a machine is to be purchased for weed spraying only, then the machine possessing the greatest number of desirable features at the lowest cost should be purchased. However, if the machine is intended for such other jobs as spraying cattle for warble fly control, potato spraying, and root cellar spraying, a more expensive machine with an adjustable pressure range from 20 to 150 pounds is likely to be the best investment.

Some of the things to be checked when purchasing a sprayer are listed below:

1. Nozzles—The nozzles should be such as to apply the 2-4-D spray solution as a flat fan spray, uniformly throughout the length of the boom. The nozzle orifice should be within a size range to allow for a rate of application between 3 and 5 gallons per acre at pressures obtained from the pump, and at speeds obtained with the individual tractor.
2. Boom—The desirable length of boom will vary with the type of land on which the machine is to be used—short booms for rough or hilly land, and longer booms from 30 to 40 feet for level land. The boom should be rust proof, and have sufficient support to prevent "whipping". Further, the boom should be adjustable for height.
3. Pressure gauge—To insure that operating pressures remain constant a pressure gauge should be on the machine and mounted where it will be visible to the operator.
4. Pressure regulator—A regulator should be provided so that any pressure adjustment can be made easily.
5. Pump—An anti-corrosive pump will help insure good operation and uniform rate of application. Pumps with rubber vanes or other rubber parts are unsuitable for use with the ester type of 2-4-D. The ester is likely to affect the rubber, thereby upsetting the calibration of the sprayer.
6. Tank—The tank should be easily filled and drained, and should be covered to keep out dust and dirt. It is best made of some material which is rust-proof. If no tank is provided with the machine, any container of reasonable capacity, possessing the above mentioned features, will be satisfactory.
7. Filters—A good filtering system is essential. Some means must be available or provided for filtering solution into the tank. Filters should be provided between tank and pump and at the nozzles. A combination of rust-proof equipment, and adequate filtering system, and care in operation will help to assure an even distribution of the 2-4-D solution with a minimum of waste, delay and inconvenience.
8. Construction—The whole sprayer should be simply and well constructed of high quality material. Repair parts should be readily available.
9. Calibration—A chart should be supplied with the sprayer to give information regarding the rates of spray distribution at various pressures and speeds. If no such chart is available, the individual purchasing the machine must spend time calibrating the sprayer so that the 2-4-D can be applied at the recommended dosages.
10. Marker—Some types of marker is desirable, but at this time we know of no machine which has a fool proof marker.

My Week

by R. J. Deachman

The man who appears frequently on a public platform runs into strange peculiar experiences. Bits of luck enable him to answer a question at the moment and bits of ill-luck may seem at times to make him profoundly stupid when under ordinary circumstances he would be reasonably bright.

An unusual experience happened to me at a campaign meeting some years ago in Western Ontario. There were four speakers on the platform that night. There was one man in the audience who was a bit of a crank. He was either then a candidate on an independent platform or had been an independent candidate.

He had a series of thirteen questions which he presented to every speaker on the platform. By common consent it was arranged among the four speakers that night that I would speak last and answer these questions.

The first twelve were not particularly difficult and would have been answered just as well by any other person with a reasonable knowledge of political and economic facts. The thirteenth question was rather difficult, it dealt with the railways and put forward the contention that the railways would be wiped out of business by growing competition of automobiles and trucks.

I answered the first twelve questions in fifteen minutes. I threw everything I had into it. I gave him figures which proved, at that particular time, that despite the total volume of railways traffic increase in automobile registration was increasing rapidly. I stated it to them in ten miles and passenger miles. I made a combined unit out of the two and expressed the volume of traffic in terms of passenger units.

If I do say so myself it was very impressive. I got tremendous applause and I was asked again and again how managed to have all the facts at my finger tips. I took evasive action, explained that it was all very easy. On the way home my friend who was driving asked me if I had pulled the figures straight out of my hat and if they had any relationship whatever to the actual facts. It is a secret I said. I am not going to tell you—not yet. We were both silent as we drove out of town. Again my friend said come through, give me the low down—tell me how it was done. So I did. A month before that meeting I had been thinking of this very problem. One day, in cold detachment, I assembled the facts, wrote a story on the subject and sent it to the Canadian Farm publication, The Canadian Countryman.

Less than an hour before I left my office that night I received a copy of the paper which contained my story. I didn't even think that subject was likely to turn up but I cut the article out and put it in my pocket and there right before me when I spoke was the whole argument. I couldn't have been better prepared to answer that question if I had spent weeks of study on it. There was no miracle, no genius as far as I was concerned. I was looking for that right and bear walked under my nose. My friend listened to my story. "What were the chances of that happening," he said. "Not one in a million," I answered. "It has never happened before or since so far as I am concerned. I have seen conditions when I prayed that it might happen."
